

Editor - in - Chief

This narrative report is written to share with the readers a great pleasure and pride in publishing the first issue of BKGC Scholar- A Biannual Multidisciplinary Students' Journal, a journal with articles written by the students of the college. Writing is just one of the many skills in which a student has to demonstrate proficiency in course of their studies. In truth, writing, and the thinking that comes with it, is at the centre of their college experience. Good writing is built on the motivation and energy of an engaged writer who has something important to say. Writing to think and thinking to write is what leads to posing a productive question. But it also requires the guidance of a tutored mind to take the first step towards thinking through discipline. This journal is an endeavour to motivate young minds to develop some of the most important attitudes, disposition and habits of thinking that they will need for success in college and in life.

Here's a brief tour of what this journal has to offer. Students from various department has been given a platform for describing, narrating, explaining, classifying, comparing and contrasting, analyzing, solving problems, persuading, and so on. In getting this opportunity of going public with their writing by finding a medium and a genre, their sense of curiosity, metaphor, humor, and wonderment is actually enhanced in the presence of an audience. This no doubt has helped in improving their skill in how an idea can transform itself in the very process of being put into words and written down. Considering the fact that the college offers three disciplines and twenty-seven majors, it has been decided to select a few articles for each issue after having refereed by faculty members.

Bijoy Krishna Girls' College, Howrah was established with a mission to empower and enrich the girl student and has been claimed as the largest Girls' college in Asia. This little step is another stride in the direction of equipping them with confidence and conviction in their ability to shine and rise in their life.

Dr Ruma Bhattacharyya
Principal, BKGC, Howrah

Coordinator, IQAC

The publication of the first issue of students' journal, BKGC Scholars, is a humble initiative from IQAC and R&D Cell. This multi-disciplinary, bilingual and biannual journal will surely set the young minds free to create a new world of their own. The focus and content of the journal are based on articles of different disciplines. We are thankful to the editors that they have recognised the importance of both the languages.

A journal is the platform for students to expand their thinking ability, to improve their confidence and to come up with new ideas transcending text books. I believe that the positive attitude, hard work and innovative ideas of our students are reflected in their thought provoking articles. Our aim is to give shape to their creative minds and critical skills. Their innovative and diverse perspectives will definitely attract the appreciation of a wide range of readers. Our teachers have put in relentless efforts to bring excellence to the journal.

The herculean task of editing and publishing this journal would not have been possible without the sincere support of the members of R&D Cell of our college. On behalf of all the members of IQAC, I always acknowledge the roles of my colleagues, students and non-teaching staff. Without their cooperation and support, IQAC would never have been able to create a good academic atmosphere in the college. Above all, we are always encouraged by our Principal Dr. Ruma Bhattacharyya. May our desire to achieve excellence be rewarded.

Best wishes,

Dr Sweta Guha

Coordinator, R&D Cell

The R&D Cell of Bijoy Krishna Girls' College, Howrah is formed on 2019 to assist the IQAC Cell of the Institution to develop by and large a research friendly environment for the faculty as well as student members of the college. For decades, Bijoy Krishna Girls' College is serving the nation as a supply line of quality researchers in the fields of Arts, Sciences, Commerce and Education. The biannual bilingual multidisciplinary students' journal BKGC SCHOLAR is going to provide a platform to our young and budding UG and PG students to showcase their independent thinking in the form of research articles under the guidance of their faculty mentors.

On behalf of the R&D Cell, I convey my sincere thanks to the members of the R&D Cell, the journal committee members, the faculty mentors of the students, the honourable advisory committee members, the technical editor, the volume editors, the IQAC Coordinator and the Editor-in-Chief for their continuous support, collaboration and encouragement for the publication of the inaugural issue of the journal.

Students are advised to submit their articles through their faculty mentors via email to rd.bkgc@gmail.com throughout the year.

May success be with us, always.

Dr Rupak Bhattacharyya